Panel Moderator

Dr. Mike Stull

Professor of Entrepreneurship

Director of the School of Entrepreneurship

Director of the Inland Empire Center for Entrepreneurship (IECE) at

California State University, San Bernardino (CSUSB)

With more than 30 years as an entrepreneur in for-profit, non-profit, and public sector environments that includes technology manufacturing, management consulting and regional economic development, Mike describes himself as the “living example” that entrepreneurship is a process that can be applied in any setting and he truly “thinks like an owner.” As someone who likes to challenge his students in and out of the classroom, Mike is viewed as an innovative and demanding teacher that brings the reality of entrepreneurship into the classroom. As one of his students noted “the class projects that Mike assigns, such as having to start and run a business, touch on every aspect of what it takes to be an entrepreneur. It truly is learning applied to the reality of entrepreneurship.” Due to this “hands-on” and entrepreneurial approach, Mike has been recognized with several teaching awards in the Jack H. Brown College and was a finalist for the California State University system’s highest honor for faculty, the Wang Family Excellence Award.

Mike holds a doctorate in management from Case Western Reserve University and an MBA/BA in Business Administration from California State University, San Bernardino. At Case Western, he served as a Fellow in the Mandel Center for Nonprofit Organizations.
